Founders' Day Celebrated By Phi Chi Medical Frat

Diners Hear Prominent Alumni Give Professional Advice

Phi chapter of Phi Chi Medical fraternity, gave its annual Founders' Day Banquet at the Raleigh Hotel on Thursday evening, February 26. The dinner was attended by prominent alumni of Washington as well as the active members.

Dr. George B. Jenkins, professor of Anatomy of The George Washington Medical School, was toastmaster. Dr. Joseph B. Glenn, professor of Matera Medica and Therapeutics, one of the speakers, forcefully pointed out what to do and what not to do during the first few years out of medical school. Correct associates and industry, he explained, were the sesames of success.

Lieut. Robert Boyden, U. S. N. M. C., spoke of the successful treatment of osteomyelitis by treatment with bottle fly maggots. The prognosis for osteomyelitis sufferers is now much better since the experiment averages only about 20 per cent failures, he said.

Dr. William J. Mallory approached medicine from the ethical side and stressed the need of cultured doctors as well as learned doctors.

Dr. Huron Willis Lawson, professor of Obstetrics and Gynecology, lamented the fact that intelligent advancement in the obstetrical field has been lacking for the last score of years. His advice to the undergraduates was "to be straight and dependable."

Dr. Francis R. Hagner varied the program by exhibiting animal pictures taken near Banff, Canada, an interesting reel of the flight and life of eagles, and one of a tarpon catch taken off the coast of Florida.

Dr. William Allison White, professor of Psychiatry, took advantage of his position as last speaker to make interesting observations as to the hidden thoughts and desires of the previous speakers and then brought the "adolescents" down to earth by reading bits of an eminent English physicist's book, which showed the relatively insignificant importance of man.

Dance For Union Fund

On March 21 the Student Council will sponsor a subscription dance in Corcoran Hall, the proceeds of which will go toward the fund for the furnishing of the new Student Union Building. Tickets will be $1.50, couple or stag.

President and Mrs. Marvin will head the list of prominent people who are acting as patrons and patronesses for the affair.

PRO FRATERNITIES ORGANIZE COUNCIL

Temporary Constitution Submitted To Chapters For Ratification

Temporary organization of a professional interfraternity council at George Washington University was accomplished at a meeting held February 20th, at the home of James H. Kettering, official delegate from Alpha Chi Sigma. Representatives were present from Scarab, Delta Theta Phi, Delta Phi Epsilon, Pi Gamma Mu, Sigma Gamma Epsilon and Phi Theta Xi.

A constitution, necessarily of temporary character, was drawn and approved by the delegates, and has been submitted to the several chapters for ratification. It is not intended that this constitution shall be anything more than a stopgap until a more suitable one can be drawn up after careful study. To assure the best results from such an organization it is important that as many as possible of the professional fraternities take part in formulating a permanent council and with this in view copies of the constitution and explanatory letters have been mailed chapters which were not represented at the organization with the request that they consider it for ratification.

Ratifications should be mailed to Willard F. McCornack of Delta Phi Epsilon at 1929 Sixteenth Street N. W., and when a sufficient number of ratifications has been received, announcement of the first meeting of the professional interfraternity council will be made. This meeting will probably be called about the middle of March.

Temporary officers were elected to serve until first officers are elected in accordance with the permanent constitution of the council. James H. Kettering of Alpha Chi Sigma, was chosen president, and Willard F. McCornack of Delta Phi Epsilon, secretary-treasurer.

The professional interfraternity council is to promote amicable relationships between professional fraternities, proper relations between professional and social fraternities and to cooperate with the faculty, to strive for the general development of science and the professions at The George Washington University, and to sponsor scholarship.

All professional fraternities at George Washington are eligible for membership in this council, and it is hoped that a sufficient number of chapters will act upon the project so that it may be well under way and firmly established before the end of the school year.

"Razz Berry" Promises Disclosure of Scandals

Satirical Paper To Be Sold at Interfraternity Prom

"Razzberries for sale," will be heard amid the din of the Interfraternity Prom Friday night at the Willard Hotel when the annual satirical paper published by Pi Delta Epsilon once again makes its appearance.

The Prom Rag, as The Razz Berry has well been styled by many students, promises to reveal some unusual campus scandal this year, according to affiliated persons who have requested that their names be withheld at the present time. Suffice it to say the prevalent rumor along G Street is that not only will the 1931 issue be scorching in its present form, but that some of the copy was so "hot" that it was destroyed in order to prevent action by faculty supervisors.

For 25 cents one may purchase at the Interfraternity Prom the result of a long and well-kept account of the things that have been going on under cover of the social life of the University during the past months.

A pledge of Pi Delta Epsilon will be stationed in each fraternity box to distribute copies of The Razz Berry immediately following the award of athletic cups.

Phi Sigma Kappa is his fraternity.

Lester Gates held the position of business assistant on the Hatchet during the current year. He is a member of the newly organized Commerce and Economics Fraternity, and a pledge of Phi Sigma Kappa.

During the present year Parker Jones has served on the circulation department of the Hatchet. He is captain of the Theta Delta Chi bowling team.

Delta Sigma Rho Announces Annual Debate Competition For Greek Letter Students

Invitations to the annual interfraternity and inter-sorority debating contest sponsored by Delta Sigma Rho, honorary forensic fraternity, will be sent this week to all Greek letter organizations on the campus.

A silver cup is awarded the winning organization in each group. If the same organization wins three years in succession it is presented the cup as a permanent award. Last year Phi Sigma Kappa, represented by Carroll Doering and Thomas Jackson, won the fraternity cup and Pi Beta Phi, represented by Louise Berryman and Maude Hudson, won the sorority cup.

A meeting will be held Tuesday, March 10, to decide the questions to be debated.

Interfraternity Council Provides More Rushing Rules At Last Meeting

The Interfraternity Council at its last meeting added new provisions to its rushing rules. No man shall be pledged until after twelve o'clock noon on the third Sunday after classes begin. No rushing is to take place during registration, nor during the first week of classes. This is to give both the freshmen and fraternities a longer period in which to get acquainted with each other, so that both make a more judicious decision than has been possible in the past. The rules will apply to the rush season next fall.

Annual Interfraternity Prom To Be Held in Willard Hotel

Eleanor Herzog, Arthur Darton, Roy Gable, and Charlotte Taylor To Lead Grand March In Two Sections; Athletic Awards To Be Distributed; Stag Tickets On Sale Now

The main ballroom of the Willard Hotel will be the scene of the largest social event of the college year with the holding of the annual Interfraternity Prom, Friday evening, between the hours of 10 and 2.

Always a memorable occasion, this year's Prom is expected to attract a larger gathering of fraternity men and their girls than has any Prom during the past few years. Arthur Darton, chairman of the social committee in charge, has announced that the ticket sale has already approached the 300 mark.

Stag tickets have been distributed to the delegates of the Council and may now be purchased for $3 each. There will be 50 of these tickets available to the first who apply.

Carrying out the precedent set several years ago, the official program dancing will start at 10 p. m. There will be three encores to each dance number in order that stags may break on the last or third encore. After the grand march the program effect will be discarded, allowing the stags to break in during the balance of the evening.

Johnny Slaughter's 11-piece band, composed of some of the best of Washington's musicians, will furnish the music.

"It is generally acknowledged that Slaughter is the best leader in Washington of music particularly suited to the slow prom tempo," according to Darton. "It is fully expected that Slaughter will turn out a brand of melody that will in itself assure an enjoyable evening for the several hundred who are expected to attend."

Eleanor Herzog and Darton will lead one side of the grand march, with Ray Gable and Charlotte Taylor leading the other. The march will start promptly at 12 o'clock, at which time favors will be presented to both men and girls as they proceed through the figure. Those who have viewed the favors for the Prom have stated that they are unusually attractive as well as useful.

Following the grand march a presentation of athletic awards will be made by Steele McGrew, chairman of the athletic committee of the Council. Silver cups will be given out as each championship is announced. During the past year, Sigma Nu won the basketball series and track meet, Sigma Alpha Epsilon will receive the cup for tennis, Kappa Alpha is to be awarded the baseball trophy, Phi Sigma Kappa will be presented the award for the bowling tournament, and Delta Tau Delta gets the golf cup. No announcement has been made of fraternity winners of the scholarship cups.

As usual the annual satirical publication, The Razz Berry, published by Pi Delta Epsilon, will make its appearance following the fraternity awards. Copies will be sold at each box, assuring a systematic distribution and an equal chance for everyone to purchase a copy.

Eleanor Herzog

who, with Arthur Darton, will lead the Grand March of the Interfraternity Prom at midnight Friday.

G. W. U. DEBATING TEAMS CONTEST

Men Debate Oklahoma University; Women's Team Meets Boston Orators Locally

On Friday, March 6, three G. W. teams will debate. Two of these will be women's teams, one of which will debate here, the other in New York.

The men's team will meet representatives from the University of Oklahoma in a radio debate, at 4 p. m. The contest will be broadcast over station W. O. L. George Washington will be represented by Raymond Herzog and Robert L. Parsons, who will uphold the affirmative of the question, Resolved: That the Eighteenth Amendment should be repealed. Each speaker will be allowed ten minutes time, and will combine his constructive and rebuttal speeches in one.

Women representatives from the University of Boston will make a trip here to meet G.W. women in a debate on the question, Resolved: That the several states should adopt legislation providing for compulsory unemployment insurance. George Washington will support the negative of the proposition, and will be represented by Louise Bruce, Elizabeth Reeves, and Louise Falligant. Mrs. John Donaldson will be chairman of the contest which will be held in the Council Room of Corcoran Hall at 8 p. m.

While the negative team is engaged in this contest the affirmative team will be debating the same question against a negative team from New York. The women to make this trip for Washington will be selected from a squad composed of Bertha Kauffman, Elizabeth Wheeler, Genevieve Wimsatt and Louise Feinstein.

Dr. Paul Heyl Lectures To G. W. Physics Club

Bureau of Standards Physicist Is Inventor and Author

Dr. Paul H. Heyl presented to the Physics Club of George Washington University last Monday evening, March 2, his lecture on "The Gravitational Constant," which he has presented to other physics societies

Dr. Heyl is a physicist at the United States Bureau of Standards and holds the degree of doctor of philosophy. He is the author of two books: "The Common Sense of the Theory of Relativity," and "Fundamental Concepts of Physics." Dr. Heyl also has the distinction of being the co-inventor of the earth inductor compass.

The Cavendish experiment for determining the gravitational constant has been improved upon by Dr. Heyl, who has obtained the most accurate value ever recorded. The accuracy of this gravitational constant is of vital importance, for it is from this constant that the mass of the earth is computed. The difficulty of the task of determining the mass of the earth may be illustrated by a person trying to compute the mass of a chair upon which he is standing without getting off of it. It is a stupendous undertaking to find the earth's mass, and Dr. Heyl's improvement will greatly increase the accuracy of it.

In his lecture Monday evening Dr. Heyl told of the different methods that have been used to determine the gravitational constant, and of how he improved these to arrive at his more accurate evaluation.

HATCHET ELECTS WIN WEITZEL TO 1931 EDITORSHIP

Harrington, Boyle, David, Dismer, Fesler, Weaver Also Named To Guide Paper

Winfield Weitzel was elected editor of The University Hatchet for the coming year at a meeting of next year's staff of editors held in The Hatchet Office on Sunday evening, March 1. Prior to his election, the retiring staff named Weitzel, Cecile Harrington, Marian Boyle, Leo David, William Dismer, Jr., C. Manley Fesler, and Mary Weaver as associate editors for the new year.

He has also been an assistant editor on the Cherry Tree. He is a member of Phi Sigma Kappa and a pledge to Pi Delta Epsilon.

Cecile Harrington was also an associate editor of The Hatchet. This is her third year on that publication, and she is also a member of the Cherry Tree staff. During the past summer she was a member of the Handbook Board of Editors. She is a member of the Panhellenic Council, where she represents her sorority, Alpha Delta Pi.

Marian Boyle has served for two years on The Hatchet, being a senior reporter before her election. She is assistant copy editor of the Cherry Tree, and is a sophomore in the Junior College. She also is a member of Alpha Delta Pi.

Leo David is a sub-editor of The Hatchet. He is a member of the Cherry Tree Staff, and was active in the Columbian Debating Society in 1930. He is a member of Phi Epsilon Pi, and was a charter member of the local chapter when it was installed in 1930. He is now president of the chapter.

William Dismer has been sports editor of The Hatchet in 1928-29 and again in 1930-31. He was publicity director of athletics in 1928-1929. He is a member of Kappa Alpha, Omicron Delta Kappa, Gate and Key, and Pi Delta Epsilon.

Fesler is an assistant editor of the Cherry Tree. He is secretary of the local chapter of Sigma Chi.

Mary Weaver acts as the social service chairman in the Y. W. C. A. cabinet. She holds a position on the W. A. A. Board, and was chairman of the County Fair this year. She has served on The Hatchet as women's sports editor. She is a member of Chi Omega and a pledge to Gamma Eta Zeta.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Once again we wish to explain The Hatchet's stand on letters to the editor. We welcome earnest opinions and criticisms from bona fide students in regard to school matters. Only one requirement is specified—that the letters be signed by the student writing them.

We ask this for several good reasons. The column of letters to the editor is not intended as a place where people may free themselves of a gripe at one particular professor. On the contrary, the letters we want are those which show thought on the many problems around the campus.

It is not necessary that a constructive plan be offered in these letters. If there is something in the University that a student believes is wrong, The Hatchet urges that he write in his criticism, even though he may offer nothing in return. We do welcome signed letters to the editor, since this is the only medium where students may present their ideas to the student body.

ADVERTISING A UNIVERSITY

No large university needs publicity. Most people will agree on that point, but few realize that an institution's reputation is subject to numerous fluctuations up or down in the public favor. Possibly two major influences may be selected as having more to do than others with the disseminating of knowledge concerning a seat of learning.

Students themselves play a very large part in the impressions received abroad of a university. The press makes a habit of reporting any unseemly activities, whether they occur within university territory or not, and distant newspapers frequently copy the items. Or student demonstrations made in strange cities upon the occasion of a football game or the like often tend to give onlookers false impressions. Students, then, bear a large share of the responsibility of maintaining a favorable reputation for their Alma Mater.

The other influence which permeates beyond the college gates to help build up the university's name is that generated by the professors. Their value is not fully appreciated 'till they are called away to other tasks. McGill is singularly fortunate in possessing a staff which is a credit to her name. The achievements of those engaged in research are broadcast universally; others are frequently called on for advice; while still others have set themselves to the writing of books. It is known that certain professors have taken more than a personal interest in the department of the University in which they are located; they have gone so far as to encourage its development, subsidized from their own resources.

McGill students have done their share to keep the name of the University highly esteemed. This is equally applicable in both the fields of intellectual and athletic enterprise. It remains for successors from year to year to live up to the example set for them.—The McGill Daily.

"Student Opinion"

The Carletonian is criticized for not mirroring student opinion. The Carletonian makes no claim to mirror "student opinion." Nor does it attempt to mirror administrative opinion. Nor does it suppose that the two are necessarily divergent. Nor does it, when making a sincere attempt to recognize two sides of a discussion or question, imply that it is on the side "student opinion" does not favor when it shows possibilities of considerations on both sides.

What is "student opinion?" Who favors it? Is it a unanimous thing? To the last question the truthful answer must be "No, almost never." Minority opinions as well as majority opinions exist, and should fairly be weighed. Who forms it? A few people, always, whom others will follow both thinkingly and unthinkingly. What is it? It is the opinion of the majority fairly enough, but an opinion which inherently partakes neither of soundness nor unsoundness. It may well be either, but a paper is not pledged to "mirror" it editorially. Certainly a paper should build, rather than "mirror" opinion! The Vox Populi column is open to "student opinion"—and one readily sees in that column that "student opinion" is not unanimous.

The Carletonian attempts to maintain a policy of fairness. It has, and will continue, to attempt to point out two or more possible sides if a question is under discussion. The stand it takes will be one that seems to be best for the college and the college students in the long run.—The Carletonian.

Editorial taken from The Nation, New York

ordinarily throw their hats into the air and shout for the vacation caused by the catastrophe. An instance of an exactly opposite reaction has just come to our attention. The Hessian Hills School, a progressive school in Croton-on-Hudson, New York, burned to the ground the other night, and within twenty-four hours nearly every child in the school had offered to help rebuild it. One offered pennies; many pledged allowances; one club of pupils offered to double the dues paid by every member so that the school might have "between $8 and $9 a month for the place where we will study next year." Another class voted to be "self-supporting" and buy paper, pencils, and a blackboard out of money in its possession. Here was the reaction of a new generation to a new type of education. No less exceptional in view of the uninspiring character of much public and formal education, was the spontaneity with which the teachers seized upon the catastrophe for educational purposes. When some youngsters scratched down the paper plans for the new school, they were made the basis for lessons in arithmetic, geometry, mechanical drawing, and discussions on architecture. "What are schools for?" was one question asked. "How should the rooms, shops, auditorium, and so on, be located with respect to each other? What are the building problems of a school?" Maybe the new Hessian Hills School—if sufficient funds can be raised in a dark year to build one—will reveal some of the ideas worked out by the folks interested, the very children who will use it!—The Nation.

Columbia, Mo. (I.P.).—Co-eds of the University of Missouri have come to the rescue of the distressed Southern cotton planter by adopting a resolution that they make their spring wardrobes out of cotton, including their stockings.

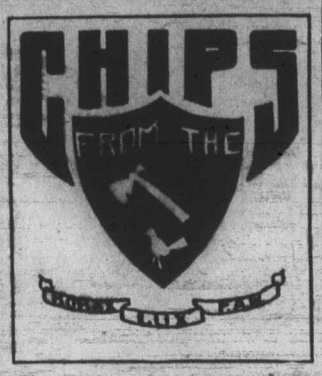

Praising the co-eds in the U. S. Senate, Senator Heflin urged all Americans to follow their example.

As yet no one has spoken a piece for the silk manufacturers.

Baltimore (I.P.).—Four women students of Johns Hopkins University will accompany Dr. David M. Robinson, archeologist of the university, on his expedition this summer to the site of the ancient city of Olynthus, destroyed in 348 B. C. by Phillip of Macedon.

A "Scotch" student at the University of Minnesota tried to save two pennies by enclosing a letter with his laundry when he sent it home, contrary to the postal regulation that no writing be sent by other than first-class mail. The bundle burst open, revealing the letter, and his mother had to pay $2.58, first-class rates on the whole package.

Swapping of meals between fraternity houses each week has been instituted by the Interfraternity Council at the University of Southern California. It is hoped that this innovation will become an institution.

The passing of a dynasty is heralded by this week's unofficially announced changes in The Hatchet lineup of associate eds. Female dynasty might be more exact.

'Twon't be many weeks now before editorial control of this sheet that has a weekly circulation of 6,500 will revert to masculine hands. And the males also will have numerical superiority where associate editors' votes are necessary. Does this make Rollo happy? YES!

Demmit, males, wake up to your possibilities.

No letters were received this week from a certain individual who has seldom failed to deride the use of "white paint." How could he have failed to notice the improvement on the southwest corner of Twenty-first and G? Just another example of Cloyd H. keeping up with the neighbors.

Society gets a break! Page five was quite a come-down from its former advantageous position with the diligently-perused editorials. But now society has a new "cut" at the head of its column. "Eureka," and other unnecessary words conveying the general idea, "how did it ever happen?"

Internal dissension undergoes the annual camouflage Friday night when fraternity men and their dates make merry and make whoopie and make boop-boop-a-doopie at the prom. Stags seem to pay $3 for the right to applaud and imbibe solace from the general conviviality. All the profit must be tied up in favors, the way these little hope chest baubles are being bragged about.

The Interfraternity Council, by the way, has indulged in another piece of legislation concerning rushing. This time the interests of the rushees are said to be the motives for the action

About gone now is the drought. But one of the results of its havoc may be seen in front of the Woodhull Building. Prexy's palms (at least they look like palms), look to be sadly in need of succor, aid, or what have you. Perhaps Quigley's invigorating cokes would provide a cheap method of resuscitation.

A suspicious looking package which was found to contain the dead body of a negro infant was the cause of the arrest of two of our med students last week. Explanations proved satisfactory to the police, but not to this column. Moral: Carry your chickens home from market in a clean bag.

Twenty-eight students earn all "A" grades. Why not announce how many besides Dick Rollo earned all "A's" but one?

The Campus Club is open for business again, according to unverified reports. Rumor hath it that the official censor has thoroughly inspected this den of laziness and found nothing to condemn. The Campus Club is therefore in the same class as the Carroll Sketch Book—just good clean fun.

Ever feel at a loss for a novel way of expressing your worn technique on "the latest?" Here's a suggestion from the Coe College Cosmos:

The cavemen said it with a club,
And knocked their girl friends cold.
They said it with a duel or so
In days when knights were bold.
Grandpa said it with a blush
In hidden moonlight bowers,
But I can only try my luck
By saying it with flowers.
I'd like to whisper it to you—
It's awful hard to tell—
I'm kinda bashful—but aw gee,
I like you—awful well.

Suggestion to the outgoing associate editors: The Hatchet office needs a dictionary.

Reporter declares in story that an event "will take place at 4 p. m., in the afternoon." And style sheets have just been issued. Just another case of reportorial blindness.

Speak of the devil Rollo finds himself temporarily blind to any possible additional bits of interest in the week's news. To tell the truth he's very sleepy. Goodnight.

DICK ROLLO.

A kiss is a pronoun because "shé" stands for it. It is masculine and feminine gender mixed, therefore common. It is a conjunction, because it connects. It is an interjection (sounds that way). It is plural because it calls for another. It is singular; nothing else is like it. It is usually in apposition with a caress; at least, it is sure to follow. A kiss can be conjugated but never declined. It is not an adverb because it cannot be compared, but it is a word that expresses feeling.

G. W. FIVE LOSES ITS FINAL GAME BY CLOSE SCORE

Colonials End Season With Eleven Victories; Virginia Medics Swamped

Eleven victories and five defeats constitute the record with which the Colonial courtmen closed their season last Saturday night by a somewhat disappointing game with the Drexel Institute of Philadelphia. After winning its first two games last week by rather decisive margins, the Buff and Blue five dropped its fifth game in its fade-out performance, the finale going to Drexel by a 31-to-29 margin.

More than surprising was this last defeat of the Colonials, who earlier in the season had swamped Drexel on that team's home floor by 24 points. Notwithstanding the fact that it was a last-minute one-handed shot by Drexel's ace, Chick Bublitz, that spelled defeat, it was a sadly disillusioned bunch of Colonials that left the floor at the sound of the last whistle of the year.

Apparently out to better their previous 47-to-23 victory at Philadelphia, the Colonials got off to a 11-to-0 lead in the first eight minutes, and seemingly had the game "in the bag." But they had this aforementioned star, Bublitz, to contend with, and the husky tap-off man of the visitors was just a bit more than the combined five players of the G. W. aggregation could handle.

Couldn't Stop Him

Nine times during the evening did this "man-mountain" send the ball zipping through the cords, and not one of his shots failed to draw cheers from an otherwise partisan group of spectators. Bublitz had an uncanny knack of getting loose at the side of the court and shoving the ball forward and upward with one hand. This technique, coupled with a deadly eye, gave him nine field goals during the evening.

And to prove that he was no "fluke," Bublitz took it upon himself to apply the finishing touch to his team's disastrous work for the night. With less than three minutes to play, George Washington was leading by a 29-to-25 margin. However, Bublitz came through to make the score 29 to 27 and a moment later, the score was tied by another Drexel man. With the whistle in the time-keeper's mouth, Bublitz got free on the left-hand side of the court and the ball found the hoop five seconds before the end of the game. Whataman!

"As Burgess goes, so goes the team," could have been uttered with perfect truthfulness in this contest. On the assumption that every first-class basketball player has an off-night every now and then, we can't criticize Burgess' work, especially in view of the fact that he has been the team's outstanding player all season. But the brilliant forward was just "off form" last Saturday, and that's all there is to it. Whether overtrained or what, he appeared "dead" on his feet and failed to give his usual top-notch performance. We still agree with Brother-Correspondent Jack Espey of The Post, however, that he belongs on the "all-Washington" collegiate five.

Va. Medical Swamped

One reason for the sad playing of the team on Saturday night may lay in the fact that only the night before, Captain Jack Conner and his gang had piled up their record score for the season in their own gym, swamping the Virginia Medical College quintet under a 53-to-33 total. While the team would have bettered even this overwhelming score if its members had not missed so many snowbirds, the final count sent plenty of spectators home satisfied with the knowledge that they had seen George Washington's best team of the last decade in action.

"Otts" Zahn led the massacre by annexing the proud total of 17 points, closely followed by Burgess with 14. Conner also regained his eye in this game, finding the cords six times for 12 points. After the first few minutes, when the Colonials ran up a 25-to-12 lead, there was nothing to the game.

Regrets?

Our worthy neighbor, Father Ryan of Catholic University, gives us permission to play in our own backyard. Then the announcement of the cancellation of our home game with that institution is made public. Are we led to believe that there is too much cement in this backyard of ours?

It is also to be noticed that this cancellation cuts our schedule one game shorter—in fact, takes away one highlight we have been waiting all season to see revenged.

There is only one court team in recent years that may compare with the present varsity squad—that of '1927, which dropped only six games in their schedule. There is no doubt that the present team is the greatest of any in the past decade. The boys have dropped only five games in a sixteen-game schedule—which even the local papers must grant is a great improvement. With the present strong frosh squad coming into varsity quarters next season the outlook looks exceptionally bright. With an improved schedule to reward their efforts—well—we'll see.

G. W's Honor Roll

If one were to make an honor roll of the varsity basketball players, he would have a hard time. There seems to be no doubt that Forrest Burgess has played the most conspicuous part in the successful season. To him we would award the position as the most valuable player on the squad. But the work of Wyn Chambers and Jack Conner, though inconspicuous, deserves honorable mention. Chambers, as we have said repeatedly, has been the tower on which the team relied in the pinches. Take the recent game with St. Johns for example. With the score tied and only a few minutes to go, Wyn crashes through with his only points of the evening, giving the Colonials their victory margin which St. Johns could not again stop. Jack Conner has been almost overshadowed by the flashiness of Burgess. His running of the squad, as captain, has been excellent. He is another of the type which could be counted on in the pinches. All in all, we say that Burgess, Chambers, and Conner—in their respective order—must be placed on the honor roll.

Tennis

The tennis season next approaches. In spite of the fact that this sport is rated as a minor one, there is always a large squad on hand. The past season saw the team drop only one game, that to Georgetown, and come through the remainder of the season undefeated. Army was one of the colleges which went down before the Colonials. The 1931 schedule calls for thirteen matches with five trips; three more than were played in '30. Three men of the 1930 squad will be missing when the season is formally opened against Maryland on the eleventh of April. These are namely: Jaquette, Edge, and Allen. Four letter men: Goldsmith, Considine, Staubly, and Philips, are again available for action. These men, with the winners of the annual tournament, promise us another season up to the par of the past few years.

In watching the development of a certain local paper in regard to University matters during the past year we have a congratulation to offer; namely: we would like to thank our alumnus, Curly Byrd, for his consistent and competent mentions of us in his nightly columns. At least our alumni may occasionally perceive that the University has won or dropped a game. Congratulations!

Repeat Over St. Johns

Earlier in the week, the team had traveled to Annapolis to engage the St. John's five of that town in a return game, after defeating the Johnnies, 30 to 24, here the week before. But little difference was found on the Annapolis floor, Coach Pixlee's men again handing out a defeat, this time by a 33-to-25 margin. Zahn again was high man with a 10-point total, while Burgess came through with 8.

FROSH BASKETERS CONCLUDE SEASON WITH TWO GAMES

Win From Strayer But Lose To Eastern High; Eight Victories Annexed

For the second time this season the George Washington freshman basketball team won from Strayer College, by a score of 43 to 23, and lost to Eastern High School, with the count of 54-47. These two games completed the frosh's schedule, the team achieving eight victories out of twelve starts this season.

The scoring aces of both G. W. U. and Eastern had a gay time Wednesday afternoon piling up points. The first half of the contest was of little interest but in the latter bracket both fives developed a scoring drive led by Fouts of the Yearlings and by Noonan of Eastern. At the final whistle, each had tossed seven baskets from the floor and two foul goals. Hickman and Cordova played valiantly for the little Colonials, together accounting for 24 points. However, the superior basket shooting of the high school team as a whole, was too much for the freshmen.

Fouts, Hickman Star

In the second game of the week, with Strayer, the youngsters from George Washington easily overcame their opponents. It was a game where the superiority of one team over another was so evident, that there was little of the spectacular in it for either the players or the spectators. Fouts and Hickman performed creditably in the scoring phase, and Joe Robey, with the help of his teammates played an excellent defense. Miller and Leverton were the outstanding basketers of the business college five.

According to Gordon Potter, who has covered all of the freshman games, Jim Pixlee should acquire some basketball material from the 1930-31 Frosh team that is more than just "good."

C. U. Cancels Basketball Game

Relations between George Washington and Catholic Universities have been concluded sooner than was expected by the receipt of a letter from the C. U. Athletic Department last Thursday informing the G. W. moguls that they had cancelled the basketball game scheduled between the two institutions for Friday night, March 6. The original announcement of the "break" between the schools was not expected to affect this game, but C. U. did not wish to play the contest under the circumstances.

Co-Eds Will Play Hostesses To Local High School Girls

Athletic Agencies Plan Annual Play Day Here Soon

G. W. co-eds will be hostess to the girls of Washington's five senior high schools on March 21, at the annual play day sponsored by the Physical Education Department and the W. A. A. Board. The Y. W. C. A. has offered the use of its building at 17th and K Streets for the diversified program of relay races, stunts, folk dances, volleyball, tenikoit, bowling, and swimming. Student committees in charge of arrangements will be announced soon by Ruth Atwell, professor of physical education for women.

Competition will be between color teams, including players from each school, instead of rival school groups. The object of this "play" sport system is the furtherance of G. W's intramural slogan, "A team for everyone, and everyone on a team." The spirit of play for play's sake is encouraged by the three outstanding features of a play day:

1. Diversity of sports.
2. Play for whole schools or groups.
3. An improved form of competition, preventing rival school line-ups.

"Play day reveals democracy at its best, and play as physical and mental amusement at its finest," says Dean Thyrsa W. Amos of the University of Pittsburgh. In practically all of the leading colleges of this country, friendly play competition has been found to be the ideal way of developing initiative, self-control, leadership, loyalty, and general good sportsmanship.

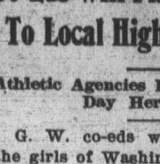

New Haven, Conn. (I.P.)—The favorite sport of students at Yale-in-China at Hunan, Changsha, is soccer football, according to word received by university officials here.

Pi Beta Phi Is Intramural Ping Pong Tourney Winner

Pi Beta Phi won the intramural ping pong tournament last Friday by defeating Alpha Delta Pi, winner in League A, and Kappa Kappa Gamma, winner of League B.

The finals were played by Judith Fishburn, Kappa Kappa Gamma, who defeated Marian Boyle, of Alpha Delta Pi, 6-4, 6-4. Pi Beta Phi, represented by Marion Lum, won from Judith Fishburn, 7-5, 4-6, 6-1. Pi Beta Phi defeated Alpha Delta Pi, 6-3, 6-3.

The next series of tournaments in the intramurals will be volley ball, which begins today.

BURGESS LEADS D. C. COURTMEN IN 1931 CAMPAIGN

G. W. Star Far Ahead of Competitors In Individual Scoring

An honor never gained before by any George Washington basketball player within memory of anyone connected with The Hatchet has been achieved this year by Forrest Burgess, outstanding member of the 1930-31 Colonial five. By scoring 197 points in sixteen games, or an average of a little better than 12 points per contest, Burgess achieved the distinction of leading all the college courtmen of the District of Columbia in point-scoring for the 1930-31 season.

In accomplishing this feat, Burgess has broken a two-year stranglehold on this honor by Del Cosgrove, of Gallaudet, who led the District collegiate scorers from the beginning of the 1928-29 season to the end of the 1929-30 campaign. Although Cosgrove has not yet completed the season with the Gallaudet five, which has one more game to play, he is 33 points behind Burgess, making it an almost superhuman task for him to retain his honor this year.

Burgess' 197 points put him 25 points ahead of Bozie Berger, of Maryland, who was second in the individual point-scoring, with 172 points. Berger, moreover, played in 18 games—two more than Burgess—which reduces his average to less than 10 points per contest, materially below our hero.

Burgess Long a Star

That Burgess should achieve this honor seems only natural, as the effervescent G. W. sophomore has long been synonomous with the term "basketball" in this city. Twelve years ago Burgess started in the game which has brought him and his respective teams fame. As a star with Central High School, he was acknowledged one of the most finished scholastic stars ever seen in Washington. There was nothing that Burgess did not know how to do, it seemed, in high school circles.

Going to American University in 1929, he immediately made good as a college performer, holding down a varsity berth with A. U. his very first year. Transferring to George Washington the following season, Burgess was forced to spend a year on the freshman five by virtue of the one-year rule in effect at G. W., but he materially aided that team in compiling an enviable record and in reaching the semi-finals of the A. U. tournament held here a year ago this month.

Added to Reputation

With the varsity here this year, Burgess has not only maintained his reputation, but added to it. He has continually been the spark-plug of the team and its most consistent and dependable scorer. His cool-headedness under fire has marked him as a most valuable person to have on a team, in addition to his mechanical ability, which knows no bounds. As a shot, he has no equal in the District. It is doubtful if he could be kept off any "All-Star" team, regardless of the section of the country in which he was playing.

Leaving Burgess, we find that George Washington had the second best record of any team in the District, topped only by Maryland University, which made such an enviable record in the Southern Conference. Engaging in 16 games, G. W.'s five was victorious in 11. Maryland's team copped 14 out of 18 games. In only one game, however, was George Washington outclassed. In losing to Rider, the Colonials admittedly were against a superior foe, at that, losing only by a 28-20 margin. Losses to Navy, Catholic U., Elon, and Drexel were all by small margins—in no case the margin being over 7 points, and 1- and 2- point defeats suffered in the last two instances.

Members of Sigma Kappa Prominent In Tennis World

Mrs. Harper and Mrs. Martinez Are Both Widely Known

On the tennis court the Sigma Kappas hold the honors in a big way. From the local chapter there are several who have won distinction in this field.

Mrs. Ruth Martinez is the public parks champion of the District of Columbia and has been ranked second among the public parks players of the United States. Frances Walker has held seven doubles titles in the Eastern States and several singles titles, including the championship of the District of Columbia. She has also been George Washington University singles champion and was for three years captain of the women's varsity tennis team. Elizabeth Wright is also a former captain of the varsity team and co-holder of the G. W. U. doubles title. Marion Butler is the present holder of the University singles championship, as well as of the Columbia Country Club singles title.

In a national way, also, a Sigma Kappa has been ranked by the United States Lawn Tennis Association as the foremost woman tennis player of America for the year 1930. In the national tournament of last year, Mrs. Lawrence Harper, of Oakland, Calif., defeated all her American rivals, losing only to Betty Nuthall of England in the finals. She is considered by many critics as the world's greatest woman doubles player. Besides her outstanding ability in tennis she is also a Phi Beta Kappa.

Phi Sigma Kappa, bye.

Last Saturday night at the Rendezvous, keen competition ran throughout the five interfraternity bowling matches. At the end of the evening, it was found that Phi Sigma Kappa had clinched the championship of League B, while the lead in League A had changed hands, with Kappa Sigma assuming the leading role by virtue of its sweeping three-game victory over the former leaders, Sigma Nu, who dropped into third place by the defeat. As S. P. E. won two games from Delta Tau Delta, they moved up into second place, one game away from the Kappa Sigs.

This week should prove most interesting to the leaders in League A. Kappa Sigma, if they continue at the pace they have set, should have little difficulty in defeating K. A., but the match between S. P. E. and Sigma Nu probably will determine which of the two will remain in the running. Although Sigma Chi and S. A. E. are literally out of any honor positions in the League B race, their match should be closely contested.

By winning its ninth straight game of the season, Phi Sig kept its perfect record clean and automatically clinched the championship of League B, even though it should lose all of its remaining games. Phi Sig will meet the eventual winner of League A for the interfrat title. Theta Upsilon Omega rose from third to second place by taking three games from Sigma Alpha Epsilon. In the other match of the evening, Kappa Alpha captured two games from Acacia.

Kappa Sigs Roll High

Coincident with their taking of every game from Sigma Nu, the Kappa Sigs' total pin-fall for the evening eclipsed all the others. A three-game set of 1593 saw Sigma Nu overwhelmed by the sum of 93 pins. Every man on the Kappa Sigma team shared in the decisive win, but it was the outstanding performance of Norment Hawkins who hung up high set score for the evening, that virtually was the shining light of the night. Hard pressed by Clyde Reeves of T. U. O. and Bill Hoover, of Phi Sigma Kappa, who had sets of 343 and 345, respectively, Hawkins outdistanced both by rolling 115 in the first game, 123 in the second, and 110 in the third for the high score of 348.

However, honors for individual high game of the season still belong to Clyde Reeves who bettered his former record of 137 by rolling 145 in his evening's first game. Downer, a teammate, gave Reeves the closest run by upsetting 139 pins in his final game, the pair aiding their frat to give Kappa Sig a close run for scoring honors for the night.

Probably the most exciting game of all the matches, however, was the first between S. P. E. and Delta Tau Delta, when the latter rolled 466 and S. P. E. 467, a margin of only one pin.

Colonial Swimmers Lose Meet With Indians, 47-17

Burnside Wins 440-Yard Race in Last-Minute Spurt

The Colonial swimmers lost to the William and Mary Indians at Williamsburg, Va., on February 25, the final score being 47 to 17. As in the meet against the University of Virginia the previous week, freshman swimmers were not allowed to compete, which took Rote, Klein, and Nimro from the line-up.

The feature event of the evening was the 440-yard swim, which was won by Burnside of the G. W. squad. At the tenth lap of the race, Burnside was almost a lap behind the Indian, who was leading, when he took a pace that brought him to the finish line about 6 inches ahead of the field.

Strauss, G. W.'s leading diver, had the misfortune to strike the board on one of his dives, which prevented him from bringing his usual number of points to the Colonial scoring column.

No meet is scheduled for this week.

Spring Golf Tournament Matches Being Arranged

Plans are now under way for the George Washington University Golf Tournament, which will be held in the spring. It will be conducted in a manner similar to last year's tournament. It will be run off in two brackets, the upper and lower.

All the matches, which will be played at East Potomac, will be elimination matches, the winner progressing. No handicaps will be given to anyone.

John Shorey, who won the tournament last year, will defend his title and will probably find stiff competition from John Thacher and Charles Cole.

All persons who are interested should see Max Farrington at the gym in order that the schednle can be drawn up and the two brackets arranged.

CO-ED BASKETERS PLAYDAY VICTORS

American University and Wilson Teachers' College Lose To G. W.

G. W. co-ed basketers were hostesses and victors at a playday with girls from American University and Wilson Teachers' College Saturday afternoon in the G. W. gym.

Each school was represented by four class teams and the various class teams vied for honors. In every game of the afternoon except that between the G. W. freshmen and the Wilson freshmen, the girls of Buff and Blue were victorious. The senior class team again stood out as the most skilled of the group. The excellent work of Jean McGregor and Martha Benenson made possible overwhelming victories for this team over both American University and Wilson Teachers' College.

Approximately seventy-five girls participated in the playday and the group as a whole played unusually good basketball, which again shows that a large as well as small number of girls can be allowed to participate in a sport without impairing the calibre of the game played.

After the playing was over, the girls enjoyed a tea served in the Chi Omega rooms. Jean Westbrook, accompanied at the piano by Vola Drury, entertained the group with a number of violin solos. Those pouring at the tea were Miss Anna Pearl Cooper and Mrs. Mary Quick Bowman.

Results of the games are as follows:

A. U. Soph vs. Wilson Soph, 14-7 (Wilson).
A. U. Frosh vs. G. W. Frosh, 15-0 (G.W.).
A. U. Soph vs. G. W. Soph, 12-4 (G.W.).
G. W. Junior vs. A. U. Junior, 26-4 (G.W.).
A. U. Senior vs. G. W. Senior, 28-0 (G.W.).
A. U. Frosh vs. Wilson Frosh, 8-2 (Wilson).
Wilson Soph vs. G. W. Soph, 13-8 (G.W.).
A. U. Junior vs. G. W. Junior, 13-7 (G.W.).
A. U. Senior vs. Wilson Senior, 11-3 (Wilson).
G. W. Frosh vs. Wilson Frosh, 6-5 (Wilson).
G. W. Senior vs. Wilson Senior, 22-4 (G.W.).

Northwestern Prof Tells Class That Skirt Length Is a Financial Barometer

Two great problems which have baffled many brilliant minds have been solved simultaneously by Professor Baker Brownell, head of the department of contemporary thought at Northwestern University. In a single sentence he answers the whys and wherefores of the many changes in women's dress, and tells the anxious business man how to calculate financial conditions in the immediate future.

Professor Brownell has made the startling statement that the market rises and falls with the rise and fall of women's skirts. In other words, skirt lengths are a reliable and accurate financial barometer.

When skirts begin to get longer that's a sure sign of coming depression; when they get shorter again the market is bound to go up. To prove this theory, Brownell cites the fact that skirts were very short in 1929, when the financial boom was at its height. In the fall of the same year, however, the vogue for longer skirts was started, supposedly by a whim of the Parisian dressmakers, and the stock market crash soon followed.

Brownell doesn't explain how this theory is reached, as he says he wants his students to do a little brain work themselves for a change. But he is quite positive that financiers who want to get rich in Wall Street had better take a good look at their wives' clothes before doing much buying; and it might be a wise idea for co-eds who crave the latest in Easter wardrobes, to shorten their dresses a few inches today in order to insure a well-filled family purse when April comes around.

"Bit and Bridle" Club Riders To Take First Ride Saturday

The "Bit and Bridle" Club held its first meeting on Tuesday, March 3, at twelve o'clock, in W. 15. The first ride will be on Saturday, March 6, and all riders are asked to meet at the Gym Office at 1:30 o'clock. The horses will be procured at Collington, Md. and transportation by car will be provided members free of charge. Charge for horses is one dollar an hour.

Everyone in the day and night classes interested in riding who did not attend the meeting Tuesday may write the manager, Rosalie Palmer, sending in a schedule of classes. She will make arrangements for riding either once or twice each week.

The Columbian Women are offering a cup in memory of the horse that drew the carriage of George Washington's founder. This award will go to the winner of a show to be held in the late spring.

Profs Are Rated at Harvard

A "Confidential Guide of Courses" in which student opinion of courses and instructors is compiled has recently appeared on the Harvard campus. Criticism of courses and methods of teaching are expected to aid new students materially in choosing their curriculum.

WHO'S WHO IN BASKETBALL

"In winning ladies it's a moustache—in basketball it's speed," and George Washington proudly possesses a gentleman with both qualities: Jack Connor. But only the latter quality will be discussed. When the name, Jack Connor, is brought into conversation our minds automatically turn to basketball and although our campus does not have a "Football Freddie" we are very well satisfied with our own "Basketball Jack," and he is living nobly up to his name.

Jack was captain and coach of the freshman basketball team last year and he led them through a very successful season. This year he is captain of the varsity tossers, and is still leading his teammates successfully onward. Jack possesses certain individual qualities which distinguish a star from an ordinary player. He quickly learns the opposition's system and plans his attack accordingly. In passing he shows unusual speed and accuracy, but above all his playing improves with the speed of the game. A fast, close game is just Jack's dish and from this he acquires that hero element of coming through when he is mostly needed.

St. Joseph, Missouri, is Jack's home and it is there his basketball career began. He first played with the St. Joseph High School team which, after winning 32 consecutive games, went to Chicago for the national high school championships. Jack then went to Westminster College at Fulton, Mo., for one year and played with the basketball team that won the Conference title in 1925. The Sterling Milk Co., an amateur team, was the next to benefit by the name of Conner in the line-up and he played with them for a year and a half, finishing out the year with the Hillyard five, also an amateur team, which won the national championship title.

Being a sophomore, Jack has two more years at G. W. U., so just stand aside and watch his smoke.

Seniors and Frosh Win Over Sophs and Juniors

Seniors Walk Away With Juniors; Frosh Win Hard Game

Seniors and freshmen scored second victories over their opponents in the second round of the interclass basketball tournament, on Wednesday evening, February 25, in the G. W. gym. The scores of the games were: senior-junior, 48-8; freshman-sophomore, 7-2.

Despite the fact that the seniors triumphed over the juniors by a large score, the game was interesting in its entirety. Both teams played a fast, hard game from beginning to end. The most noticeable feature of the game was the accurate and fast passing exhibited by the senior team, to which may be attributed their victory.

In the game between the sophomores and freshmen, the latter equalled the excellent playing of last week, in the battle against their more experienced opponents. The sophomore forwards were able to break through but once for a goal and this came in the last minutes of the game. The good offensive work exhibited by their centers was outstanding for the sophomores, while the admirable work of the freshman guards contributed largely to their team's victory. Both teams showed excellent cooperation.

Women's Aquatic Tests Are Now In Progress

Two Triple Meets Planned for Swimming Team

During the two weeks beginning March 2, swimming tests are being given to all freshman and sophomore women. These tests are required by the Women's Physical Education Department and must be taken at the scheduled times. Students are to be classified according to ability as beginners, intermediates, and advanced. The test consists of being able to dive in and swim the length of the Y. W. C. A. pool twice. Regular classes will begin March 23.

Telegraphic contests are being planned. A triple meet with New York University, Swarthmore, and G. W., and one with Harrisonburg State Teachers' College, University of Iowa, and G. W., are in the offing.

Much interest is being shown in the Swimming Club, which is open to all women of the University. The club meets at 3:30 each Thursday afternoon at the K Street Y. W. C. A., under the management of Edith Brookhart.

During the spring season a course in Red Cross life saving will be given. Students may obtain junior and senior life saving certificates. Students interested in this course should leave name and schedule at the gym office.

Class managerships are still open for swimming. Applications should be made to Miss Atwell.

WHO'S WHO ON THE CAMPUS

Edith Norris, formerly known as Dean Doyle's secretary, came to G. W. in 1927 from Central High School.

At present Edith is on the Board of Editors of the Cherry Tree and is the features editor for this year. Last year she also served as features editor and the year before was on the features staff. When the "Ghost" was in existence she was one of the members of the Board and in 1929 and 1930 was one of the editors of the University Handbook.

She was last year chosen as one of the members of the first Student Council representing Columbian College and at present is secretary of the organization. If Edith's personality had not made her so popular and well known the fact that she led the interfraternity prom would have succeeded.

Through her literary ability Edith was elected to Gamma Eta Zeta, honorary journalistic fraternity for women. She is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma and is a junior in Columbian College.

Glee Club Wins Contest In Middle Atlantic Section

Lo, How a Rose E'er Blooming—

George Washington University

Judges for the contest were: Clyde B. Aitchison, director of the Interstate Commerce Commission male chorus; Kurt Hetzel, a leading Washington pianist and composer; and Mrs. Carl R. Chindblom, wife of the Representative from Illinois. In making their decision, which was unanimously in favor of George Washington University, the judges rated the contestants on the five qualities, tone, pitch, enunciation, ensemble, and interpretation. The prize song carried a weight of 50, and the choice and University songs, weights of 30 and 20, respectively.

Edward M. Curran, president of the Middle Atlantic Glee Club Association, who announced the decision of the judges, complimented both glee clubs on the high quality of the songs given, and the fine manner in which they were interpreted.

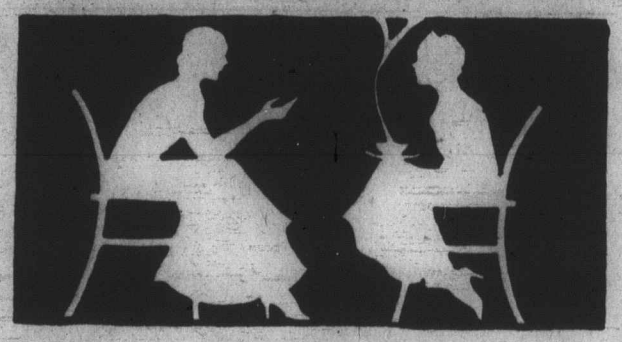

With the local contest a matter of history, the George Washington Glee Club is making final preparations for the National Intercollegiate Glee Club contest, to be held in Carnegie Hall, New York City, on March 14. George Washington will take part in this event not only as the representative of the Middle Atlantic section, but also as defending national champion, a title won in competition with a dozen well known universities and colleges in last year's contest.

In commenting on the victory, Dr. Robert H. Harmon, director of the Glee Club, attributed much of its success to the efforts of its student conductor, Jesse L. Stimson. The rules of the Intercollegiate Musical Council require that, when participating in contests, glee clubs must be led by an undergraduate student. After his success last year in leading the club to its national victory, Stimson was again chosen as student conductor at the beginning of this season. Dr. Harmon remarked that Stimson possesses all the qualities necessary to successfully conduct a glee club, namely, a thorough knowledge of music, sincerity, personality, poise, and the ability to inspire confidence in the singers.

Ruediger, Dorey Write Reviews For Magazine

"Progressive Education" Prints Criticisms of New Books

Dr. William Carl Ruediger, dean of the School of Education, and J. Milnor Dorey, lecturer in play production, are contributors to the book review department of the February number of Progressive Education Magazine. Dean Ruediger reviews "Intelligent Philanthropy," edited by Elisworth Farris, Ferris Laune, and Arthur J. Todd, a book which grew out of the desire of the directors of the Wieboldt Foundation to get the advice of specialists with reference to fundamental principles involved in philanthropy. Lynn Thorndike, Mordecai M. Kaplan, Ernst Freund, and Edward A. Ross are among the writers.

"The worth of the book is indicated by the calibre of the contributors, each one of whom occupies a front-line position in his specialty. The layman, as well as the student of social problems, will gain from the book many valuable side-lights which he would not be likely to learn unaided," says Dean Ruediger. "Departments of sociology will find the book useful as a text in social welfare courses."

Mr. Dorey reviews "The New American Literature," by Fred Lewis Pattee. "It is a difficult task for a present-day critic to secure perspective on contemporary life and letters," states Mr. Dorey, "but Dr. Pattee has proved his discernment in this engaging and baffling field. Beginning with the Frank Norris and Stephen Crane school, the author examines each group with a charming, whimsical, and yet pungent appraisal. Few contemporary critics possess such intriguing power of phraseology and such wealth of figure and comparative allusion."

McCauley (with distinction), Emma Jane Maloney, Leafy Margaret Weadon, bachelor of arts in Education. Rosa Folau, Ella A. Hanft, Mary Murray Kochka, Vera Rebekah Parker, and Maury Weldon Thompson received the master of arts degree in Education.

From the School of Government Henry Allen Babcock, Hugh Gladney Grant, and Montrose Henley Hayes received their master of arts degrees. Mortimer Harwood Davenport and Vernon Allen Frazier received the bachelor of arts degrees in the Division of Library Science and Columbian College, respectively. The Division of Fine Arts conferred degrees on Eugenie LeMerle (with distinction), and Elizabeth Lewis Zimmerman.

DEBATING TEAMS SCORE VICTORIES IN THREE MEETS

Trinity College Bows To Women; Men Conquer University Of Cincinnati

The George Washington University debaters came to the front last week with three victories. Trinity College bowed to our women on Wednesday night, and on Thursday and Friday nights the University of Cincinnati followed suit in a dual debate with the men.

In a debate held at Trinity College on Wednesday night our negative team, composed of Hilda Haves, Elizabeth Reeves and Louise Falligant, was successful in proving their point against Trinity's affirmative team. They were debating the question, "Resolved: That the several states should adopt legislation providing for compulsory unemployment insurance."

The Trinity girls showed that the country was in dire need of some plan which would save it from future periods of depression, and that compulsory unemployment insurance adopted by the states was the most effective means of reform. They claimed that both employers and employees should contribute to a common fund, which the state would hold in reserve until time of need. Their plan was asserted to be necessary and practicable.

Against State Action

The George Washington team agreed that there was need for some form of unemployment insurance, but held that the states should not adopt the plan. Their argument was that if they did adopt such a plan individually the laws would not be uniform, and that without uniformity, cooperation among the states would be impossible. The negative then claimed that in order to be most effective the plan would have to be national.

The question in debate on both of the following nights was, "Resolved: That the Ontario method of liquor control should be substituted for the Eighteenth Amendment."

Ralph Gilby and James Ronald, who composed the George Washington team, upheld the negative of the question against the Cincinnati debaters in all cases.

Against the affirmative argument that the Eighteenth Amendment infringed on the individual rights of the citizens while the Ontario method did not, the G. W. team claimed that the court system was so inefficient that it was the cause of the present crime conditions, and that lack of trained officials and proper organization is the cause of the amendment's failure to function well. They showed, further, that the Ontario plan had not worked in Canada, and since law enforcement was weaker in the United States than in the Dominion, the plan has little chance of success here.

Delta Phi Epsilon Elects; Six New Members Initiated

On February 16, Delta Phi Epsilon, foreign service fraternity, elected Arthur Kimball, president for the coming year to succeed Ernest Parker. Elections for the other officers resulted in Arthur Beach becoming vice president; Emory Bundy, secretary; Howard Payne, treasurer; Caldwell Kendrick, librarian and historian; and Willard MacCornack, sergeant-at-arms.

At the following meeting formal initiation was held for the six pledges of the fraternity. Those inducted were: Dr. J. O. Murdock, assistant solicitor of the State Department and a member of the Law School faculty; Jay Miller, Guerry Smith, Paul Keyser, Vernon Northrup, and Bartley Gordon. The new initiates were presented with their pins by Dean Notz of the Georgetown School of Foreign Service, national president of the fraternity. Professor W. H. PAPER BY RAGATZ READ AT MEETING

Plantation System In Caribbean Discussed By G. W. Professor

At the recent annual meeting of the American Historical Association, one of the papers presented dealt with "The Old Plantation System in the British Caribbean." Dr. Lowell Joseph Ragatz is the author of the article, which was also recently published in the current number of "Agricultural History." The following is an abstract of the article:

"Absentee landlordism was an outstanding characteristic of British West Indian agriculture. It was due to three forces, each primarily operative in a different period. A wave of unprecedented prosperity, beginning about the middle of the eighteenth century, filled the proprietors' coffers. This made it possible for them, first, to educate their children abroad, and second, to retire beyond the Atlantic and there live lives of ease. Then, from approximately 1775 to 1815, trans-Atlantic estates in large number passed into the possession of inhabitants of England by inheritance. Finally, between the close of the Napoleonic Wars and the institution of emancipation, the greater part of them fell into the hands of creditors, chiefly West India traders in London and the outports, through the foreclosing of mortgages.

"Political, social and economic consequences of a most momentous nature followed the general exodus of members of the planter circle. Places of honor and trust came to be held by mediocre men, multiple office holding was carried to extravagant lengths, legislatures, courts and administrations failed to function properly, and the representative system progressively broke down. Increasingly, the professional men of low caliber, little education, and small proprietary interest comprising the resident white population of the sugar islands, came into control.

Three Social Results

"The social results of absenteeism were three—a growing disproportion between whites and blacks, the debasement of colonial society through the spread of concubinage and the rapid growth of a mulatto class, and the passing of local pride and feeling.

"The economic effects, too, were striking in the extreme. Non-residents estates were left in the hands of attorneys engaged on a commission basis. But professional men and neighboring planters commonly held such positions, and they were unable to give the properties the necessary personal attention. Likewise, the direction of many estates by one attorney was common. Hence, only the most superficial control was maintained and the real management fell into the hands of irresponsible overseers.

"The operation of absentees' estates was marked by gross extravagance. No attempt was made to effect economies on buying; the waste of supplies was notorious. Improvements were seldom made, buildings fell into ruins, and fields were tilled until exhausted. Plantation methods were crude in the extreme, but improvement was impossible because of the owners' objections to expenditures which would in any way decrease their incomes as well as because of indifference on the part of those in charge. Many of the inhumanities toward the negroes can be traced to a desire on the part of those directing tropical agricultural enterprises to increase production, or at least to maintain it in the face of growing soil exhaustion.

"It was largely because of the attorneyship-overseer regime that British sugar was all but excluded from continental European markets following the Seven Years War in favor of that from the French West Indies, produced by resident growers and profitably offered at prices which the absentee British found altogether impossible to meet.

"What wonder then, all these circumstances considered, that the British sugar islands, the jewels of the Empire in 1750, had already sunk into stagnation and decay before the freeing of the slaves?"

University Medical Society Plans to Increase Activity

With the purpose of increasing the activities of the George Washington University Medical Society and of establishing closer relations between the society and the Medical School, a resolution has been passed appointing to the council of the society the executive committee of the school and the hospital advisors.

In conjunction with the school, the society is promoting the publication of a bulletin which will carry the news of the activities of the school, the hospital, and the society, and which it is hoped will be sponsored by the University, because of its importance in keeping alive the interest of the medical alumni.

A movement is on foot to organize a dinner in Philadelphia during the convention of the American Medical Association to be held there in June.

Emmanuel Addresses Menorah

"The Renaissance of Hebrew" was the subject of a talk given by Benzion Emmanuel at the last meeting of the Menorah Society at the Jewish Community Center, held Thursday, January 23. Mr. Emmanuel stressed the fact that the renaissance of Hebrew is not only the renaissance of the language itself, but the renaissance of the entire Jewish nation, which, having no country of its own, engaged in usury, the shoe business, etc., and which is now being brought back to the soil. Jewish culture all over the world is being affected.
